What is trauma?

Trauma is something bad that happens to you that can make you feel:

- sad

- scared

- stressed

- worried.

Trauma can affect:

- how you think

- how you feel

- your body.

Trauma can happen:

- once
- more than once.

Everyone deals with trauma in different ways.

How people react to trauma

People with trauma can find it hard to manage how they feel.

This can start to happen when you are a child if your parents or carers:

- don't care for you

- don't look after you

- hurt you.

People react to trauma because they:

- don't feel safe

- feel like they are in danger.

Trauma can make it hard to think clearly.

It can also make it hard to feel calm.

People with trauma can:

- forget things

- feel confused

- feel like things aren't real

- have depression.

If you have depression, you feel bad most of the time.

Triggers are things that make people with trauma react.

People can have different triggers.

It can be hard to know what might trigger someone.

How people react to stress

Everyone feels stressed sometimes.

Stress can make it hard for you to think clearly.

It can also make you act in different ways.

The way you react to stress can help when you are in danger.

There are 3 main ways that people react to stress.

These are:

- fight
- flight
- freeze.

Fight is when you try to fight the danger.

Flight is when you run away from the danger.

Freeze is when you can't move or speak.

After the danger has passed, you will:

- think more clearly

- feel calm.

People with trauma can find it harder to deal with stress than other people.

This means they might feel like:

- they can't think clearly

- they can't feel calm.
